Let's focus our attention

An interesting spectrum of opportunities with a challenging and rewarding lifestyle is available to us all if we focus our attention and direct our actions to the amazing possibilities and potential that are worth exploring. Learning, growth, productivity, adventure, fun, new relationships, experiences, personal development and happiness can be an everyday state for anyone who is willing to focus on what they want to do, have or experience and take action in that direction and in the process create the ideal life.

So, how do we translate ideas into action? It is easy, to focus on the new reality we want to create. Relax, enjoy and be ready for action. Invest that thinking capacity and creative imagination with some discipline to get in shape, learn something new, challenge ourselves to grow and develop in ways that we may have neglected, suppressed or not even thought of. We can find or create something interesting, really interesting. We can develop our body, mind and soul into something dynamic, robust, on fire...energized and alive, a whole new level from where we are now to where we want to be! Let's think about it, we can make a plan, set goals and work the plan, that's easy right? New positive friendships can be developed in new groups, clubs, sports, associations or other activities. All that energy can be focused on something productive, entertaining, beneficial and inspirational that will create opportunities in ways that perhaps we have not dreamed of yet.

Think about it, visualize it, right now...the most adventurous life imaginable is possible, the ideal future can materialize faster than ever before, most effectively, by doing all those things that really excite us and motivate us to fulfil our incredible human potential. We could in a heartbeat, apply the levers of power, make progress and set in motion the gears of growth and success, the ultimate power to exercise and transform wherever we are, into the most exciting place on the planet. We each can be a part of it, we can choose to make it happen. Neutralize the enemy of mediocrity and procrastination. Be diligent and determined to be the best we can be. Where ever we are in private, public or side by side in the battlefield, make incredible progress, discoveries, perform feats of courage, bravery or genius, brilliant engineering, outstanding skill, exercise leadership, have and give inspiration and co-operation, excel at any job, do something better than you have ever done it before, feel that excitement of really being alive. We can do that now, as we apply ourselves to that life we have and idealize. Our values, priorities, decisions and actions are directed in a forward thinking outlook and applied in a constructive manner towards what we value and find the most interesting, so make some goals, write them down, and work at them everyday to make them a reality.

Surrender nothing, take no prisoners, make no excuses, fortify your position, leave nothing to chance.
