EXO_13 - Protectionism eh!

We interrupt this program:

Protectionism is really a great thing, as those of us who are perceptive and shrewd understand when people say, "oh no, we must resist protectionism" or something like that, we really know it means, buy Made in Canada! Oh yes, we are supposed to smile and say that's ok to all that stuff and that annoys us and makes it much more difficult and expensive to operate a business, yeah, we are so great in Canada, we allow everyone to do just about anything, we are the Canadian golden goose personified, yep, that's us.

Too bad about massive wage and tax differentials, that's too bad about all the raw materials leaving the country-we lose so many jobs without downstream processing, the brain drain too, corporate espionage, stolen and counterfeit tech left, right and centre, no sense having computers on the internet with all that bullshit, too bad eh, hmmm, retail operations getting just everything made offshore, you know, copied, prices are still high and the jobs a gone, bye bye, dumping everything in sight and then some, that's too bad too,

Canadians will just have to re-invent themselves dammit, it's really part of a much greater plan you see, gotta create a crisis of some sort, the people gotta draw the line, you know, exercise the power of choice and see what they can do personally, we are not complaining, we are explaining, certainly no sense in lobbying the government to stand up for Canada, not that, we know all about geo-politics.

We really are smart in Canada, something really practical we can do, reduce the bureaucratic burden, regulation and an infinite amount of rules that cater to everyone else but ourselves at a disadvantage, instead of driving overhead and the cost of production through the roof as if there was no end in sight, something a little different, a whole lot of that must disappear, cut back on excessive intermediate transactions, handling and mark-up, find more direct, efficient, effective, profitable and massively streamlined approach to doing business, find more ways to save, you know, saving money is like making money and find better ways to invest and build a stronger enterprise.

Of course we can build with an outstanding industrious work ethic, you know, not the people that want the pay cheque but not do the work, no subsidized slacker mentality, people that can put their heart and mind in their work, more entrepreneurial you see, give'em a bigger piece of the pie, working share owners in an operation, people could understand more of what it takes to run a successful enterprise and they need to benefit from it, it doesn't hafta be the main company, but something and somehow with what they are involved in, rewards, bonus, intellectual compensation, profit sharing, these ideas are not new.

Now, there really are many things that can be done, crank up the R & D, the production machine, organized co-operation and infrastructure, more made in Canada eh! Canadians will hafta defend themselves, they really have no clue about how so little stuff is made here anymore, no idea of whole industries gone, you know poof, non-existent, no idea how retail operations and mass imports wiped out massive manufacturing capacity and free enterprise, and almost totally no idea how far they have fallen from all that organizational, engineering and production genius from fifty to sixty years ago.

Battlegroup 301 Incorporated - Renaissance & Transformation

Yep, reduced to rubble, Canadians have hardly noticed that Made in Canada is on the endangered list, oblivious, kinda like hypnotized or something, too much tv, sports and distractions can do that, wow, no comment, this is a non-issue eh?! Roll up our sleeves and get to work eh?! Unless we really are mentally and physically lazy, and then it still might be ok to continue to sell out and defraud ourselves of our glorious destiny we can have by choice, hell wait 'til hyper-inflation kicks in, you think it is expensive doing something now, try the cost of doing nothing, and how about seeing the cost go up with even fewer manufacturing jobs, crank up interest rates a wee bit, then we will really have people kicking and screaming, buying all this stuff we don't make for ourselves, having to put up with all that junk, damn we really get it eh?!....

Anything that was done before can be done again and even more so now, in fact anything we want, we will simply cut back on all these dollars leaving the country, re-invest in what we want, the real Made in Canada....anyone can take the proportional per person amount of the trade deficit with the country that is trying to put us completely out of business and cut back accordingly, simple, Made in Canada or else! Now back to our sponsor...

We've got work to do, good thing everything is under control...?

Have you ever said, no problem hunny, everything is under control....?

Buy, build, save, invest, contribute, develop and acquire Made in Canada eh!

Someone obviously went through a lot of work and trouble to figure it out, how to really do all that and more, you should check out Capital Vault Incorporated and see for yourself if it's true.
